What to Look for When Buying a Mobility Scooter

Choosing the right kind of scooter is not easy. There are a lot of things to consider even outside of your financial situation. Here are a few things to consider when buying a mobility scooter:

Where will you be using it?

- If you are using it indoors, you might want to choose a three-wheel scooter that maneuvers around corners better. Measure doorways too to make sure it will fit through them. Remember you can lose up to 2" if the doorway has a hinged door.
- If you are using the scooter primarily outside, it is recommended to use a four-wheel scooter. Four-wheel scooters are better at going over rough terrain and bumps.

Seating

If you spend most of the day on your mobility scooter, you will want a comfortable seat. A captain's seat tends to offer the most comfort and support. If you are only looking for a travel scooter that you don't spend a lot of time on, then it will almost certainly have a less padded seat than other scooters.

Size

Make sure that you can sit comfortably. Your feet should be flat against the footrest and your knees should be bent at a 90-degree angle. You should be able to reach the tiller control easily too. Check the weight limit of the scooter too and make sure to have some wiggle room for any items you might also carry on the mobility scooter.

Controls

You have many options including the standard tiller and the delta tiller. The standard tiller requires both hands and the manual dexterity to control the speed and other things like the turn signals.

Portability

A travel or portable scooter is the best option if you travel a lot by car or plane.

Ramps

We now rent and sell portable ramps to accommodate wheelchairs and scooters.

We will consult with you to determine the best length for the height of your steps while meeting ADA regulations.

Things to consider

- The ramp must be sturdy enough to accommodate the size of the person and the equipment they will be using on the ramp.
- Be sure the ramp is not too heavy for caregivers to move and adjust.
- Will you need handrails?
- If transporting ramps, be sure they will fit in your vehicle.

Ostomy

When it comes to ostomy care, we understand that you may have a lot of questions. We're here to help!

Whether you're preparing for ostomy surgery and don't know what to expect, or you're interested in learning more about ostomy care and products post-surgery, our staff is at-the-ready to answer your questions about the products you may need.

We have an extensive selection of in-stock ostomy products, and it's crucial to check with your doctor or surgeon about what products you may need related to the type of surgery you have.

What is "Ostomy"?

- Ostomy is surgery that creates an opening (stoma) from an area inside the body, like the bladder or digestive system, to the outside. In other words, with an ostomy, the surgeon is creating new ways for your body to eliminate waste.
- When an organ must be removed, ostomy may be permanent.
- Ostomy may be temporary when an organ (small intestine, colon, rectum, or bladder) needs time to heal after surgery.
- There are numerous websites full of information about living with an ostomy, and you can look to Forsyth Medical Supply to have the products you need to take care of yourself, or a loved one.

Compression Therapy Products

Compression therapy works by adding pressure to contracting areas of restricted flow, allowing the veins in the limbs to loosen. This loosening decreases venous pressure, reduces edema, and aids the body in moving blood towards the heart.

Compression therapy typically means wearing socks or stockings that are specially designed to support your veins and increase circulation in your legs. The socks or stockings are normally worn in the morning upon arising, and removed at night.

Compression sleeves are worn on the arms to offer similar support as stockings.

At Forsyth Medical Center, we offer a comprehensive selection of compression therapy products. Most are customized to suit your size, so you will achieve maximum benefit.
